BLUE GRASS SEED CROP VERY HEAVY

According to figures secured from the Blue Grass Seed dealers and raisers the crop for this year is the largest that there has been since the year 1912, when the largest amount of seed was gathered in the history of the seed business, says the Winchester Sun. The prices being offered for seed varies. In some sections the dealers are offering a price of $1.80 per bushel for the cured seed while no price so far is obtainable for seed from the stripper. The stripping according to the farmers will begin between the first and the eighth of June, according to the weather. Large tracts have already been disposed of for money consideration in his and adjoining counties, while a number of the county farmers have made arrangements for their seed to be stripped on the shares.

A grand rush is being made for available strippers in this county, and all strippers available will be pressed into use, with the old time strippers and all available self-raking strippers already spoken for. With the amount of money that will be realized from the second payment of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association to the growers and the prospects for a good sum of money being realized from the blue grass seed, the farmers, it is predicted, will be in better condition financially than they have been for the past years.

VITAMINES IN MILK MAKE ANIMALS TAME

(By Associated Press)
Louisville, Ky., May 17—The tamer of wild animals may take lessons from the department of chemistry of the University of Louisville that animal taming is in the curriculum of the university but Dr. W. A. Homberger, professor of chemistry has divulged many new points in taming animals during his experiments with rats in search of the vitamins in milk.

"The more vitamins in milk the tamer it will make animals," said Dr. Homberger. "That big fat rat there," he picked up a giant of two pounds, "I have been feeding only the purest of milk whole milk that is certified as to purity and freshness by the Jefferson County Medical Society." The rat climbed up his arm and was as tame as a kitten.

In another cage, was a small round rat, fat but undersized that crouched in mixed fear and anger as Dr. Homberger approached his cage. "He has had plenty of every kind of food except whole milk. I have fed him milk powder instead," said Dr. Homberger. The professor of chemistry then recounted facts regarding taming animals with pure milk. He told of the red blooded animals, all of which suckled their young, and how when deprived of milk the young became vicious and wild. Dr. Homberger is searching for the milk that he calls the perfect food for babies.
